

<https://www.heraldnews.com>

NEWS

U.S. Bedding draws strength from Fall River workforce

Published 8:59 p.m. ET Oct. 7, 2016

U.S. Bedding President and CEO David Nguyen talks about the various materials that go into the custom orders his company produces.

The Herald News

U.S. Bedding on Quarry Street.

The Herald News

Marelo Mejia uses a pneumatic staple gun in building a box spring to a customer's exact specifications.

The Herald News

At U.S. Bedding, Eddie Lima runs a machine that crushes the air out of memory foam pillows for shipping.

The Herald News

Prefabricated parts allow customers to assemble their own box spring.

The Herald News

Fernanda Carvalho assembles a mattress topper at U.S. Bedding.

The Herald News

U.S. Bedding President and CEO David Nguyen shows how two memory foam pillows can shrink in size after a machine squeezes the air out of them and seals them for shipping.

The Herald News